6. No. of total participants	38
7. The objectives of the Program/activity/event	The objective of this talk is to acquaint participants with the diverse phenomenological methods utilized in qualitative research, with a specific focus on Giorgi's descriptive approach. By examining lived experiences, comparing key phenomenological approaches, and analysing their strengths and limitations, the session aims to foster ethical reflexivity and highlight the significance of phenomenology in bridging scientific inquiry with human understanding.
8. Description of the Program/activity/event	Research scholars organise monthly online guest lectures in the Discipline of Philosophy, SSPIS aims to expand the knowledge of philosophical perspectives and research among philosophy students, faculties, and the general public interested in philosophy.
9. Benefit/Key outcomes of the Program/activity/event	As a result of the talk, attendees were introduced to key distinctions between descriptive and interpretative approaches in phenomenology, emphasizing their philosophical foundations and methodological applications. They gained a comprehensive understanding of the systematic steps in Giorgi's descriptive method, including data collection, analysis, and synthesis. Furthermore, the discussion illuminated the limitations and potential adaptations of these methods, fostering critical insights into their practical and ethical implications in qualitative research.
