The initiative aims to equip faculty with practical and adaptable performance-based strategies for use in the English literature and language classroom. Such approaches are increasingly aligned with the National Education Policy 2020 and its thrust towards experiential learning, multimodal literacy, and outcome-based education. One segment of the workshop will focus on select principles from the *Natyashastra, foregrounding classical Indian aesthetic theory as a pedagogically relevant resource, thereby encouraging the integration of Indian Knowledge Systems (IKS) within contemporary higher education. This initiative forms part of Ms Menezes' sustained academic engagement with performance in higher education and aligns with her ongoing doctoral research on the role of performance-based strategies in enhancing literary interpretation and classroom engagement.
